CHILD IS KILLED BY REVOLVER SHOT SUN.

Seven Year Old Daughter of Frank Kiser Victim of Accident

GUN IN SISTER'S HAND
Bowman Section Home is Scene of a Terrible Tragedy

Margaret Kiser, aged 7, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Kiser who reside on the Willow Brook road near Bowman Section, was accidentally shot and killed Sunday afternoon at the home of her parents when her sister, Lelia, aged 16, accidentally discharged a .38 calibre revolver, the bullet striking her in the forehead. Death came as a result two hours and a half after the accident.

Clifford, the oldest boy and Lelia had gotten the revolver from a drawer, where it had been concealed and were playing with it, not knowing the gun was loaded. Lelia while examining the weapon as it lay on the table, accidentally pulled the trigger and shot her sister, who was standing near by, in the forehead. The bullet struck the child in the center of the forehead and came out at the back of her head.

Dr. F. M. Marshall was quickly notified of the accident and hurried to the home. The doctor exerted every effort to save the child's life, but all medical aid proved futile and she died at 6:00 o'clock.

The accident happened Sunday afternoon at 3:30.

According to information received Monday by neighbors of the Kisers, the oldest boy had purchased the revolver just a short time ago and the weapon had been put away with all the chambers of the gun loaded.

The victim is survived by five brothers and sisters: Clifford, Mary, Glen, Lelia and Rosanna. The parents also survive.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 10:30 a. m. at the home. Burial at South Lawn.

ELKS PAY TRIBUTE TO THE DEPARTED BROTHERS SUNDAY

In a beautiful and impressive memorial service, Sunday night at the Sixth Street theater, the local lodge of Elks paid tribute to the departed brothers.

Judge Louis B. Houck, of Mt. Vernon gave an exceptionally able memorial address.

Attorney C. Homer Durand gave a splendid eulogy.

The roll was called of all the brothers who have died. Those who have passed away within the last two years are: C. B. McCoy, H. W. Boswick, J. L. McDowell, F. E. Pomerene, B. F. Cotter and J. B. Davis.

The theater was decorated with palms and flowers. The Elks colors, purple and white were prevalent.

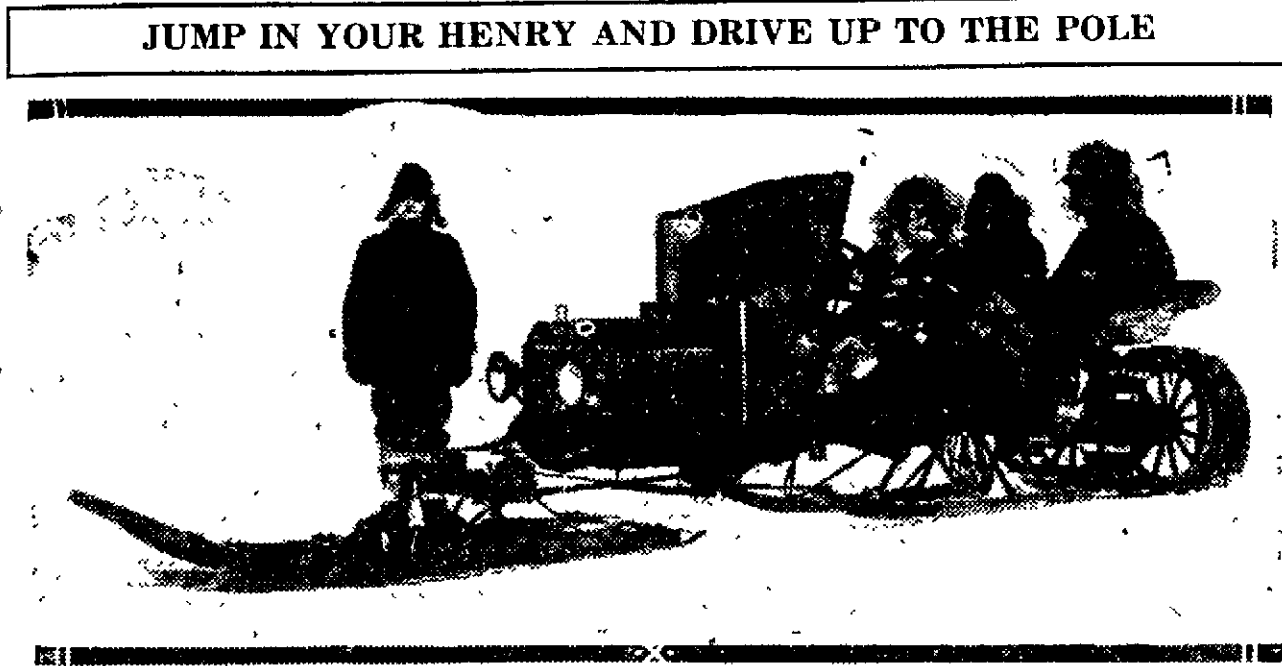

Musical numbers were furnished by Miss Dorothy Dawson and her father, E. A. Dawson, a solo by Robert Vogel, with Francis Weaver as violin accompanist and several selections by the Elks' orchestra, led by Harold Stevenson.

The closing ceremonies were under the charge of the lodge officers. The audience remained seated while the lodge marched from the theater.

The lower floor of the theater was well filled. The ceremonies were considered the nicest ever held here.

Mrs. Anna Baumgardner, East Main-st., who has been confined to the Keenan hospital for the past four weeks, was dismissed Sunday.

The Ford motor-sled in use. This photo bears out the broad statement that "you can do anything with a Ford." The ingenious owner of the one shown above altered it to fit the conditions in northern Alaska, where the roads—such as they are—lie over the snowy wastes. He has converted his car into a motor-sled. Whether he will ever attempt a trip to the pole isn't known.

PARENTS INVITED TO VISIT CITY SCHOOLS

"Visit the schools this week."

This is the invitation sent out to all parents in Coshocton by Superintendent O. B. Clifton.

Every person in the city or county interested in the public schools is also urged to visit them and become acquainted with the inner workings of these institutions where the children spend a great part of their days. The national commissioner of education has set aside this week as "School Observance Week" for the specific purposes of emphasizing the importance of education. He has suggested that all teachers should devote one period each day to telling the children about education and furnish them all information pertaining to the economic, social and civil value.

Superintendent Clifton has sent out invitations to the parents of the pupils in the Coshocton public schools, that they are urged to make a visit at the various school buildings some day this week to see what their children are doing and what they are accomplishing in the line of school work and in education.

Mob Storms Jail In Vain Effort To Lynch 4 Murderers

Thousands Gather at Santa Rosa, Calif., Bent Upon Avenging Death of Three

SANTA ROSA, Calif., Dec. 6.—The dawn brought comparative quiet scores of heavily armed deputy sheriffs today guarded the Sonoma-county jail, against the gates of which an infuriated mob of three thousand last night hurled itself time after time in an effort to lynch George Boyd, Terry Pitts, Charles Valenti and Dorothy Quinlan, held for the murder here late yesterday of Sheriff James A. Petray and Detectives Miles, Jackson and Lester Dorman of San Francisco.

Boyd, possibly fatally wounded, today definitely admitted having shot and killed Jackson. Officers say he killed Petray, and Dorman also. The triple killing was a sequel to an assault on two girls in San Francisco Thanksgiving evening. They had been brot here in an attempt to identify further members of the gang responsible for that assault.

Late yesterday Sheriff Petray and the San Francisco detectives entered a house here at the rear of the Tuscany hotel. Ten minutes later deputies outside heard a fusillade of shots. Rushing in they found Petray dead, Jackson dying and Dorman and Boyd badly wounded. Four guns were on the floor. Five shots had been fired from Boyd's gun. Officers learned that Boyd had been concealed in a closet and opened fire from that vantage point, Petray being his first victim.

Soon after the prisoner had been removed to the jail, a crowd began to gather. By six o'clock it numbered 2,000. Automobiles brot angry farmers from all over the county. At 8 o'clock autos arrived from Healdsburg. Sheriff Petray's home, and every machine carried a coil of rope.

At 9 o'clock, the venerable Judge Summit Sewell, one of the best loved officials of the county, made a personal plea to the mob to save the county from the stain of a lynching. From the crowd there came back "Lynch him."

At 10:30 the mob began its attack on the jail. Telephone poles were used as battering rams against the steel doors. When these failed, steel rails torn from the railroad track nearby were pressed into service. Again and again the deputies reinforced by a dozen San Francisco detectives beat the mob back. Finally the situation became so desperate the city fire department was called out. Its number, reinforced by high pressure water caused the mob to waver. Officials pleaded with the crowd to disperse and finally at 1 o'clock this morning, the mob began to break up. Its members however, did not leave town and thruout the night kept anxious vigil.

Officials fear a further demonstration today when a coroner's jury assembles to view the three bodies at 11 o'clock. It is probable the inquest will be deferred in order to allow sentiment to cool.

THREE FINED FOR SATURDAY BATTLE

Virgil McCoy, Rodney Hall and Oliver Darr, all of the Pleasant Valley vicinity were arrested Saturday night on a charge of disorderly conduct at the Standon Hotel. The three pleaded guilty and were fined $5 and costs.

The cause of the rumpus could not be learned Monday but it is said that Darr was forcibly ejected from the hotel, a window being broken in the process, attracting the attention of an officer.

LEAGUE TAKES NO ACTION ON ULTIMATUM OF THE ARGENTINE

Reading of Note Heard In Silence By Geneva Assembly Monday

ANSWER IS PROBABLE

M. Viviani is Exercised Over Opposition to the Admission of Armenia

GENEVA, Dec. 6.—Argentina's note containing the demands which must be met to keep her in the league of nations was read by President Paul Hymans of the assembly at today's open assembly session and was received in silence.

President Hymans made no comment further than to express regret over the action taken by the South American republic.

The Argentine delegates, headed by Senor Pueyrredon, foreign minister of Argentina was absent.

Before the assembly session Senor Pueyrredon made the following statement to the International News Service.

"The Argentina delegation will not attend today's session. We consider that we have finished and are ready to depart for Paris. The people of Argentina will support our determination to withdraw from further participation in the affairs of the league of nations."

Immediately after the reading of Argentina's note, President Hymans brot up the motion which the Argentine delegation had introduced before its withdrawal last week providing for the immediate admission for all recognized states to the league. It was referred to a committee which will not report until next year.

President Hymans declared this action taken without taking a vote. The general committee of the assembly recommended that the Canadian amendment eliminating article ten from the covenant be referred to a committee reporting in 1921. This amendment was introduced Saturday by C. J. Daugherty, Canadian minister of justice. The action to defer consideration of the Canadian amendment killing article ten was unanimous.

It was understood today that former Premier Viviani of France, was requested to draw up an answer to Argentina's representations, but there was considerable doubt as to whether he would accept.

M. Viviani is angry over developments relating to Armenia and was not a very conciliatory mood when the assembly met. The French delegate's wrath was aroused over the fact that Delegate Layegues of France had joined Britain in a note to the league opposing immediate entrance into the league, of Armenia. He had been supporting the immediate entrance of Armenia in the belief that it represented the attitude of his government. It was learned that M. Viviani telegraphed to Paris demanding that in the future he be thoroughly informed of the French government's policy.

M. Viviani was so incensed over the repudiation by the French foreign office of his efforts in behalf of Armenia's admission to the league that he even threatened to resign from the French delegation.

Despite the firmness of the Argentine note delegates expressed the opinion that Dr. Pueyrredon was "bluffing." They pointed out that he had engaged a reservation of a train for Paris tonight but later cancelled it.

A delegate of one leading power told the correspondents that "not a single delegate favors inviting Argentina to return to the fold."

Lord Robert Cecil, representative of South Africa, warned the delegates that there must be no secret diplomacy in handling the Argentine situation.

URGES BOTH HOUSES TO MAKE LAST THREE MONTHS OF THIS ADMINISTRATION PRODUCTIVE

Dismisses "Senatorial Oligarchy" Charge of Campaign Days Lightly But Recognizes Importance of Senate In a Successful Administration—Makes No Tangible Suggestions Out of Respect to Propriety

WASHINGTON, Dec. 6.—Congress was formally called to order at twelve noon today, with President-elect Harding present in the senate chamber. Chaplains of both houses opened the congress with a prayer for divine guidance of the legislative bodies in the task before them.

The galleries of both houses were jammed with spectators. Many members of the house crowded in the senate floor to greet President-elect Harding.

Speaker Gillett of the house appointed Representatives Mondell, Fordney and Champ Clark as the house committee to notify President Wilson the house was in session and ready to receive any communication he might have to make.

JUMPS 20 FEET TO PAVEMENT TO GIVE OFFICER THE SLIP

PARTNER IS CAUGHT

As the result of an early morning call made by Chief J. R. Mape and Officer George Pretaguet of the local police force Monday morning, there probably is one man in the vicinity of Coshocton walking on a pair of painful feet.

Mape and Pretaguet went to the home of Charles Booth, corner of Walnut and South Lawn-av, to bring Booth before the mayor on a charge of stealing meat at the store of Charles Phelps. It seems that Booth and Ed (Bump) Miller were standing by the display counter of the meat shop and it is said that Miller passed a slice of ham to Booth and the two walked out.

Booth answered the knock at the door in person when the officers went to his home Monday morning and when told by the officer that he was wanted at the mayor's office, replied that he would be ready as soon as he finished dressing. Officer Pretaguet remained outside of the door. After waiting a short time Miller came to the door and asked if they were after him again. The officer told him that he was also wanted and asked where Booth was. Miller replied that he was gone. When asked how and where he had gone, Miller said that he had jumped out of the second story window. Doubting that anyone would (Continued on Page Eight)

Final Account Filed

Aditha McDowell as guardian of William Parson, minor, has filed her first and final account in the probate court.

Standing at his desk where he served for nearly six years, President-elect Warren G. Harding bade farewell to the United States senate today and in a brief speech, choked with emotion, expressed the hope that he might have the co-operation of his colleagues in the four years beginning March 4, next.

Great tasks are ahead of the nation he pointed out, and their solution depends upon the spirit of co-operation and mutual helpfulness that will exist between the legislative and executive branches of the government.

The galleries were choked with people and hundreds stood outside unable to gain admission.

Senator Harding's voice was low and husky as he began his farewell. His eyes were dim with tears.

"I am pleased at this greeting by fellow members of the senate," he said. "There is still greater satisfaction in having this opportunity to say to you informally some of the things in my heart which I could utter in no other way. I recognize I am here today under somewhat unusual circumstances, and there is a delicacy about it that one in my position cannot escape except thru some form of self-effacement which does not seem quite possible."

"No member of this body could be more reluctant to leave it. I may say to the senate that I came here with very high respect for this body, and I am leaving it with greater respect than that with which I came. If one could always direct his own political fortunes to his liking, I should have preferred my membership here to any office a citizen may hold in this republic or elsewhere in the world. I like the freedom, the association, the patriotic sense of responsibility, which abides here. I am conscious of the great place which congress holds under our constitution and particularly sensitive to the obligations of the senate. When my responsibilities begin in the executive capacity, I shall be as mindful of the senate's responsibilities as I have been zealous of them as a member, but I mean, at the same time to be just as insistent about the responsibility of the executive. Our governmental good fortune does not lie in any surrender at either end of the avenue, but in the coordination and cooperation which become the two in a great and truly representative popular government."

"This brings me to the thot particularly in my mind. Something has been said about the senatorial oligarchy. Of course every one here knows that to be a bit of highly imaginative and harmless fiction. But I do recognize how essential is the helpfulness of the senate in the making of a successful administration. I want to express today the wish of a colleague for the confidence and the co-operation of members of this body in the four years which begin next March 4th. I do not but this sincere request to this side of the aisle. One cannot promise agreement in all things with an opposite party which is sometimes insistently wrong, but we may find common ground in the spirit of service and I hope for that agreeable and courteous and oftentimes helpful relationship with the opposite side which has added to the delights of fellow service during the past six years."

"We are taking no easy task. We have our full part in the readjustment of human affairs, after the world tumult. We have our tasks at home. We have our part in the inevitable work of the civilized world. I am sure that the necessity of wise solution will inspire us to work together to take common counsel, to be tolerant of one another, and give the best which is in all of us to attain the ends which become our republic at home and maintain its high place among the nations of the earth."

"With propriety I cannot venture upon any suggestions now even tho I am speaking as a member of the U. S. senate. Three months of the present session. (Continued on Page Eight)

Financial Letter

NEW YORK, Dec. 6.—The most significant fact developed in the deliberations of the Geneva convention during the past week is probably the admitted inability of the League of Nations to carry thru some of the most important features of its program unless there should be active participation on the part of this country. That such participation cannot be expected, certainly at any early date, is now indicated by the declarations of Congressional leaders who before returning to Washington have in some cases made the definite prediction that no action on international questions can be looked for during the current winter and that even when the new Congress assembles early in the spring of 1921 there may be an effort to prevent anything more than the mere routine ratification of a resolution declaring the war at an end.

Progress of Readjustment.

As an outcome of the reduction in prices during the past few weeks curtailment of output in various lines, with corresponding unemployment, now appears as the next phase in the process of readjustment to a more normal basis of business. The past few days have seen such curtailment of output carried still further. Various important lines a reduced proportion of machinery is occupied. Recent conventions of producers have resulted in a comparison of experience which has shown that in not a few industries production has fallen anywhere from 25 to 50 per cent of capacity. In others the percentage of normal capacity is greater, but it is a fact that in all staple lines a very material reduction has occurred. On the other hand, during the past week there were indications of resumption in some lines of business where factories had been closed or running on part time for a considerable period. Managers having been advised that retailers' stocks were reaching so low a point that buying would shortly have to be resumed regardless of the frame of mind of the business man unless it was his desire actually to go out of operation. Announcement is made that an independent steel company has reduced sheet prices to $10 above those of the Steel Corporation. With business daily falling off further cuts may have to be made in order to facilitate revival in steel. This idea is supported by news that the independent steel plants in Youngstown will reduce the working hours to eight instead of twelve after January 1st. Retail trade reports from most parts of the country has shown a surprising degree of maintenance of buying power on the part of the consumer, a situation which if continued will necessarily make the present deadlock between the manufacturer and distributor only temporary.

Meeting of Congress.

An important factor in the securities situation from now on will be the new Congress which comes into existence on the 6th inst. Important legislation regarding taxation, shipping and banking now seems practically inevitable, notwithstanding the belief which has recently prevailed that legislative leaders would endeavor to defer most or all of these subjects until the assembling of a new Congress under the Harding Administration. So far as the financial market is concerned the most important element in these developments is probably to be seen in the plan to do something that will relax credit sufficiently to assist farmers and thereby to enable them if not to hold their products for higher prices at least to avoid throwing them upon the market until it is certain that the market is not in a position to absorb them.

It is only within the last few weeks that he could hobble about the capital. He has been secure, however, despite the fact that he has had to use crutches whenever he walked about. His daughter Dorothy has been of great assistance to him, accompanying him about his work.

YOUTHFUL COAT OF NUTRIA FOR THAT PRETTY DAUGHTER

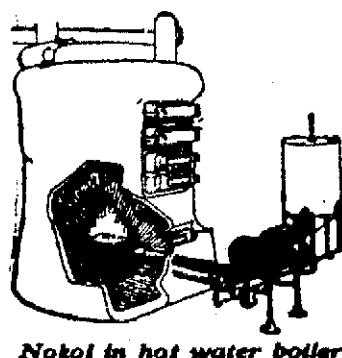

There are few pretty daughters nowadays who do not wish for fur coats. They are garments which simply must be had, and especially at Christmas time. This smart, youthful model made of nutria will please even the most exacting young miss.

It is the present depression in prices is permanent. Whether this movement will take shape as a revival of the War Finance Corporation or not is still to be seen, but there is evidently a considerable additional demand for the revival of the latter institution in order to provide means for a better financing of exports in the belief that these exports will themselves tend to help the farm situation and the general level of farm prices in a very material way.

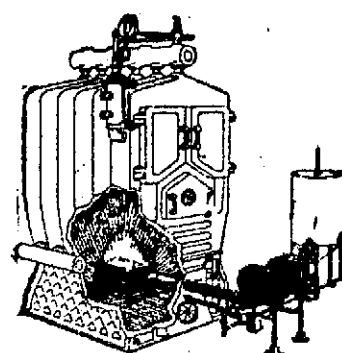

Trade and Exchange.

Meanwhile foreign trade is showing an unexpected ability to take care of itself, the total figures as made public a week ago indicating gross exports in October of $752,000,000, or about $147,000,000 larger than in September. This growth of business is naturally ascribed to the heavy movement of grain and cotton designed to provide Europe with actual foodstuffs and raw materials necessary for the continuance of current business. Most of these exports of the earlier autumn were undoubtedly represented by bills that immediately came upon the market and necessitated a corresponding withholding—of exchange balances which had already been accumulated in foreign countries. As has often been observed, the situation in our foreign trade is now evidently such as to compel the obtaining of current payment for shipments out of imports either of goods, securities, gold or services, as business proceeds. Since we are at all times sending abroad more than is returned to us, the effect of the situation necessarily is that of preventing the funding or absorption of the balances which represent the already outstanding debt due us on the books of foreign banks and merchants, or represented by short term paper currently outstanding. In these circumstances it is not

Installed in ordinary hot air furnace

You can install a Nokol automatic oil burner in your present furnace whether it is hot air, steam or hot water. Nokol burns oil instead of coal. It burns with an intense, white, hot flame which leaves no ashes, soot, smoke or odor whatever.

The absence of coal and its dust frees your leisure hours of dirty basement jobs, allows your furnace to work better and assures you a clean, healthy home.

Furnace tends itself

All you need to do is set the living room thermostat at the temperature you want and Nokol will automatically maintain it.

The moment the temperature falls below the normal point Nokol automatically ignites and brings it up again; if it goes above, Nokol ceases action.

Thus Nokol burns oil only when heat is needed.

strange that exchange quotations, in spite of temporary recoveries, have continued weak and have seemed to tend toward lower levels.

Railroad and Industrial Investments.

With industrial companies seriously affected by the shrinkage in prices and with dividend suspensions here and there tending to render the rank and file of traders rather pessimistic, it was to be expected that many investors would hesitate to proceed with the purchase of securities representing manufacturing and trading activity. This has tended to accelerate the decline which would in any case have occurred in these issues. Undoubtedly a good deal of investment demand would have been shifted over from the industrials to the rails had it not been for the unfavorable earnings reports that have been put out by not a few of the roads. These reports, however, it should be understood, have been unfavorable only in comparison with the more glowing expectations expressed by some of those who were of the opinion that the higher rates of last August would suffice to put the roads into a satisfactory position. As a matter of fact, it has since then appeared (as was pointed out by some at the time) that these higher rates have themselves had the effect of reducing the volume of traffic—an influence which they have been aided in exerting by reason of the other factors tending to bring about a falling off in volume of business. The figures compiled by the Association of American Railway Executives exhibit clearly the increasing efficiency of the roads as compared with Government ownership but their costs have already been put upon so high a basis as to necessitate the maintenance of an extremely large volume of freight charges to make the new rates very beneficial. In the absence of such volume, as has been pointed out by the counsel for the New England roads in hearings before the Interstate Commerce Commission, it may become essential to ask for a still further advance of charges.

Market Review and Outlook.

While the week started with trading on a comparatively small scale subsequent days saw some additions made to it and there has, during the latter part of the period, been a very fair degree of activity all thru the list. The bond market has been particularly active as a result of the disposition of some investors to put their funds into bonds instead of stocks, while at the same time the development of several new situations, such as that affecting the segregation of Southern Pacific's oil lands, have given a special impetus to speculation in those lines. Liquidation continues on a small scale in the copper stocks, the reason for this, of course, being the unsatisfactory condition of the metal situation and the fear that there may be further dividend reductions. So far as the general market is concerned, while the buying demand continues of the lightest kind, it is becoming more evident day by day that urgent liquidation has been completed and any attempt on the part of the shorts to cover could readily bring about an advance. In all probability there is still some "house cleaning" to be done in the way of relieving overburdened accounts, but there can be no doubt that current low quotations for the list have largely made provision for this.

keeps teeth clean AND GUMS HEALTHY.

Keeping the gums healthy and the mouth sweet is very important to health; more teeth are lost through the loosening of the tissue that holds the teeth in place than from decay.

Dental science to-day demands that a tooth paste must keep the gums healthy as well as clean the teeth.

Senreco was formulated to meet this requirement. Hundreds of dentists are prescribing and using Senreco because they have found that it does measure up to that standard.

SENRECO IS A WONDERFUL CLEANSER.

In addition to its remedial properties Senreco is a wonderful cleanser; acts directly on the mucin film, the basis of tartar; leaves the mouth cool and clean-feeling. As some one has expressed it—Senreco gives one a new idea on mouth cleanliness.

Get a tube to-day at your druggists or toilet counter—enjoy the healthy, cleanly feeling its use gives your mouth and gums. Notice how brilliantly white Senreco makes your teeth. It performs this two-fold service for you and yet costs no more than the ordinary, old-fashioned tooth paste that simply cleans the teeth and leaves a pleasant taste.

Clever Schemers

By ARLINGTON D. LANE

(C. 1926, Western Newspaper Union)
 "They seem to be very superior people."

"Yes, on the surface, but will they wear?"
 Thus Mrs. Wells in assertion and her neighbor, Mrs. Deane, in challenge. They had referred to Mr. and Mrs. Alger Mortimer, who had rented a house in the best part of town, had moved in new and resplendent furnishings, dressed well, kept a couple of servants, an automobile and a chauffeur, and seemed destined to set the pace socially.

Antecedents were not forthcoming. Mr. Mortimer had been something in a large city brokerage firm. Mrs. Mortimer was the granddaughter of a leader of fashion in the South. At least this they gave out. They opened up their house to company at once, the man all suavely and his better half smiling, dimpled, a very pretty and attractive woman, indeed.

Something, however, she could not exactly tell what, jarred on Mrs. Deane's sensibilities. There was a certain "shoppiness" at times about Mr. Mortimer that made her think of a cheap dry goods clerk. There was an artificiality about Mrs. Mortimer that betokened insincerity.

"They act to me like people playing a part for some purpose or other," spoke Mrs. Deane.

"But why? Their little social functions are perfect, they feed us well, they have the latest in furniture, crockery and dress. They seem pleased with the town and its people. They must have money, for Mr. Mortimer does not seem to have any regular business. All they ask is recognition, which they have been given. Oh, yes, they will do indeed! They have quite stirred up the town. Nearly half a dozen people have followed their lead as to an automobile. Just think of the new rugs that have come into fashion, copying their selections. As to talking machines, there is a persistent rivalry as to who can afford to buy the most expensive one."

"Yes, Mrs. Wells, but this 'keeping up with the Mortimers' is going to cost this formerly sensible, slow-going community something," asserted Mrs. Deane with force and finality.
 It was May when the Mortimers settled down, as they called it, in their home. It was about the middle of September when Mrs. Deane began to make discoveries, to patch out the Mortimer mystery.

"I have some news for you," she said to Mrs. Wells. "I understand that the Mortimers are negotiating to purchase the old Dallemont lot and build a twenty-five thousand dollar mansion between now and spring. They are going to break up house-keeping and sell off what they have in the way of furnishings, to replace them in their new home on a grand scale that will fairly dazzle the community."

"They must be made of money!" murmured credulous Mrs. Wells.
 "According to his talk at the men's club Mr. Mortimer has fallen heir to a large fortune."

"I do hope I will be able to afford to buy some of their old house furnishings when the sale comes off. Our own are so shabby they don't pass muster for the most commonplace affair."

Then the auction sale by the Mortimers began to fill the public mind completely. Little else was discussed but the opportunities afforded to secure some of those wonderful articles selected originally with such care and taste.

"Don't buy a thing," Mrs. Deane told Mrs. Wells. "There is something I know that I can't tell just yet. Mrs. Mortimer has talked to you so much about that statuette set of hers that you are just foolish enough to pay out two hundred dollars you cannot afford. Do not run into any such foolish extravagance and you will be glad later on."

"How strangely you talk!" commented the wondering Mrs. Wells.

"Well, you will believe me to be a true, useful friend when the Mortimer bubble blows up."

"Is it going to?" questioned Mrs. Wells.

"Wait and see."

The catastrophe, or rather the crisis in the career of the Mortimers, came to a final showing within the month. There had been a perfect rush to buy the furnishings auctioned off at a high figure. "Keeping up with the Mortimers" had been nursed and cultured until it became a sort of craze with formerly steady people. The schemers had well worked a specious, finely regulated plan.

When they had loaded up half the town with goods ordered through the accommodating friend of Mr. Mortimer in the city and had disposed of even their kitchen furniture at double its value, Mr. and Mrs. Mortimer disappeared without building the twenty-five thousand dollar home.

It was later learned that every season they went through just such a social business enterprise with some gullible community, the returns of the same annually paying them well for the unique proposition.

Their accommodating city agent was a relative who carried a large warehouse stock, sold at double price to those who were foolish enough to try to "keep up with the Mortimers," alias "Smithers," which was the real name of these adept schemers.

America's Greatest Asset—The Schools

FROM the Interior Department, Bureau of Education, we are in receipt of a request to urge during the week upon the people of this community the importance of popular education and to call to their attention the present condition and needs of our local schools and other educational agencies.

It would seem superfluous to ask the American people to remember the fact that they have a public school system or to bespeak for our schools a larger share in the public interest. But when we consider the deplorable percentage of illiteracy, not alone among the backward states of the south, but here in the north and middle west, where for a full century and more the public school has admittedly constituted the bedrock upon which our political institutions are founded, it is indeed high time we are reminded that if popular education fail our whole scheme of government fails with it.

In certain essential respects the public schools of Ohio, and we presume the same will hold true of practically all our states, HAVE NOT AS HIGH STANDARDS AS THEY HAD THIRTY YEARS AGO. We do not mean by that that there have not been important advances made in the technique of teaching in that time nor that school room methods have not steadily improved in that time.

We do mean that the public schools have suffered perceptibly and measurably in public esteem within the past thirty years. We do mean that education does not hold the position in the public mind that it held then. We mean that the school teacher is not the social nor spiritual nor cultural factor in community life that he was then. We mean that compared with the position the country and city school occupied thirty years ago in the estimation of all the people, a most serious change in public attitude has taken place, a change which if not corrected within the next decade will occasion grave doubt concerning the perpetuity of our institutions as bequeathed to us by our fathers.

The above paragraph is not inflammatory utterance. It is no fire bell statement calculated to amuse the pessimist nor to encourage the enemies of our most sacred institutions. It is a sober fact which every man who has been engaged in school work for the past decade and who is thirty-five years or more of age will sanction. It is one of the most clearly marked signs of the times, which not to heed is to shut our eyes in the face of impending calamity.

For five years our school teachers have stood on the brink of economic starvation. For fully ten years prior to that they were shamefully underpaid because of a period of steady and uninterrupted inflation in all basic commodity prices. We have been engaged in public school work here in Coshocton city and county who could, with an equal expenditure of brain and nerve vitality, earn from fifty to 100 percent more than they have ever earned in the teaching profession. And most shamefully underpaid of all are those devoted women teachers of the under grades who, in all too many instances are compelled to add the duties of foster mother to that of public instructor.

This is an inexcusable, a rotten state of affairs in a nation which boasts that it pays the highest wages of any country in the world. And it has had its natural and inevitable effect upon public opinion and school morale. As we think of our schools, so will they be. The altered state of public mind toward the school and the teacher is indelibly reflected in every essential phase of our primary educational standards.

We cannot as a people go on denying the material rewards for long hours and the sacrifice of mental and spiritual energy to the teaching profession and hope to keep our public school system from further slumping in public esteem. Time was when every rural community and every urban community, for that matter, looked up to the head of the local schools as one of that community's outstanding figures, if not actually the most respected and dignified personage in the community.

There should be a return to those ideals. America should again exalt the school house as a sacred shrine and the teacher as the intellectual leader of community life. For back of all our commercial genius; back of all our tremendous industrial enterprise and development; back of all our professional advancement in the past generation, stands the little red school house of our fathers; and nothing that we have yet evolved out of our complex scheme of material things can take its place as the conservator of all that is best and truest in American life.

BLEEDING MINGO IS THE BELGIUM OF U. S. COAL INDUSTRY

WILLIAMSON, W. Va., Dec. 4.—Tug River will not be considered a boundary line between West Virginia and Kentucky by military authorities here. The military will cooperate with the civil authorities of Pike and Martin counties, bordering Mingo in the preservation of law and order.

This was the result of the conference late last night between Major Jackson Morris, adj. general of the Kentucky National Guard and Col. Hall of the federal troops here. "Bleeding" Mingo was today characterized as the Belgium of the coal industry of America by Harry Olinstead, president of the Williamson Coal Operator's association.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place. Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "tired" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits.

Uncle Walt's Story

IRONIES OF LIFE

"TOMUELSON made a talk to the Commercial club, on 'Business Efficiency,'" observed the retired merchant, "and the next day his store was closed by the sheriff."

"Life is full of such ironies, doggone it," said the hotel-keeper. "Low down jokes are being played on the best of us, almost every day, and I often wonder what sort of an evil genius is behind it all."

"I used to know a man who was a wonderful horse breaker. He used to give public exhibitions, taming up-killing brutes, and the way he could make them eat out of his hand, half an hour after being formally introduced to them, was a sight worth going miles to see. He always had immense crowds at his exhibitions, and it seemed that his future was assured. But one day he was loading around a lively stable, just because he liked the atmosphere of the place, and an old, weary back horse reached out a long, crooked limb, and laid him one with it, and broke his leg."

"He had to go to a hospital for a while, and when he came out, his occupation was gone. He was as good a horse breaker as ever, but people wouldn't pay their hard-earned money to see the exploits of a conquering hero who had been manhandled by an old back horse. You must admit that there was some sardonic intelligence back of such a joke, as that. If the man had been hooked by a cow, or run over by a traction engine, or chewed up by an honest watchdog, it wouldn't have hurt his renown and prestige. But no! A blamed old relic of a horse had to put him out of business."

"A long time ago, a very important case was tried in an Irish court. The people were greatly wrought up over it, and the courtroom was crowded. When it was announced that the jury was ready with a verdict, the judge addressed the audience, saying he knew there was much feeling over the case, but the hall of justice was no place for a display of it, and if there was a least sign of disturbance when the verdict was made known, the guilty parties would be arrested."

"The jury brought in its verdict, and the people heard it in silence, but just then a whole doggone gallery, with about a thousand people in it, came crashing down, and the noise could have been heard forty miles out at sea. After the judge's solemn warning against a disturbance, the fall of that gallery has always seemed to me like a painful joke."

"A long time ago, I was called upon to address a crowd of voters on the living issues of the day, and I framed up a speech that would have been a credit to any orator. I swiped it from Roscoe Conkling, and I have always insisted that he was one of the greatest of American speakers. The house was full of refined and cultured people, and I was determined to make the bit of my life. I was just getting warmed up to my work, when the lights went out, and the hall was plunged in black darkness. There's nothing makes a man feel more idiotic than to have the lights shut off at such a time. The women in the audience were giggling, and the men hawking. It seemed funny to everybody but me."

"I thought I knew where the little table was, that held the pitcher of ice water, and I moved toward it, and fell over a chair, and flattened my nose against the edge of a piece of scenery. When the lights were flashed on again, as suddenly as they went out, the audience beheld the silver-tongued orator on his hands and knees, climbing slowly to his feet, and trying to mold his nose into its original shape."

"I never saw such a delirious crowd in my life. Some of the women laughed themselves into hysterics, and the fool men weren't much better. They never heard the balance of that oration, and the last part was the best."

"Alliteration. Alliteration occurs sometimes in the writings of the ancients, but not, it is supposed, designedly, as they regarded all echoing of sound as a rhetorical blunder. Cicero, in the 'Offices,' has this phrase: 'Sonsini sine sensu aetna senescit,' and Virgil in the 'Aeneid,' has many marked alliterations."

—William Matthews.

Try, Try Again. "Lottarox was telling me that he has been trying for six months without success to get a passage to see the battlefields of France."

"Evidently the wind has changed. He spent two years trying not to see them, with success."—The American Legion Weekly.

PEOPLE'S FORUM

WORLD PEACE

Editor The Tribune:

Late newspaper reports state that the navy department has worked out and will submit to congress a plan for building ten superdreadnoughts, and six battle cruisers. These sixteen ships, if constructed, will cost approximately $500,000,000. Why should this additional burden be laid on the people at this time? Is the war not yet over, or are we preparing to enter another war?

Official reports show that the United States now has 77 armored battle-ships and cruisers, and 1066 unarmored fighting vessels, including submarines. There are many others under process of construction. With this vast fleet equipped and ready for action, the necessity for further preparation for war is not apparent, unless we are to abandon our peaceful policy and enter upon a career of conquest, a la Prussia.

It means, too, that we are to refuse to join the League of Nations to preserve the peace of the world. It means that we choose chaos, destruction and carnage rather than peace, justice and right. Civilized nations ought to settle their differences without war. If they can not so adjust their differences, then they are not civilized, at least one, the aggressor, is not civilized.

Forty nations now extend to us the hand of friendship. We refuse the offer and go on building battleships. Our attitude is selfish and defiant. Instead of being a leader for world peace, the U. S. has been an obstructionist and a slacker. The prestige gained for the U. S. by our soldiers and sailors on the battlefield has been marred by the blundering and bickering of our statesmen.

The Newberry senate put political expediency above the needs of the nation, and the president is not without fault. If we had a Clay or Webster in the senate the result would have been different, there would have been an agreement on the covenant or a better one framed and adopted for world peace. Those who find fault with the covenant of the League of Nations should frame something better or admit that they prefer war with all its horrors rather than peace, and favor big armies and navies as a means of provoking war. Big armies and great navies are always a menace to peace.

The war lords started the war for conquest, and to prolong the tyrannical rule of the Hohenzollerns and Hapsburgs. It resulted in the overthrow of the divine right fakirs and the liberation of their subjects. For the first time in two hundred years the German people have control of their own affairs. It was a war between democracy and hereditary autocrats. It was not a commercial war as the socialists claim. The victory will not be secure until some agreement or league is formed to preserve the peace of the world, among nations. The United States ought to be a leader in this great movement, not lag behind keeping company with Mexico, Turkey and Russia.

It was unfortunate that the League of Nations came before the senate for adoption on the eve of a presidential election. To the rank partisans and demagogues the spoils of office were of more importance than the peace of the world; therefore any proposition submitted by President Wilson was certain to be defeated; and so it turned out. The Sermon on the Mount, or the Ten Commandments would have met the same fate, under like circumstances.

Since the election is over with it would seem that our foreign relations may be dealt with on their merits, and without reference to party politics. Surely the senate and the executive, either Wilson or Harding, will be able to agree on some league or association that will be acceptable to the allies. Whether it is called a Wilson league or a Lodge league is a matter of no importance to the nation.

There are a few elements of course that may be depended on to oppose any kind of a league or association for world peace, but they are of small importance. They are the munition makers, militarists, profiteers, hyphenates, those who hold stock in Mexican mines, oil fields, and railways, and the super-patriots—those who wrap the flag about themselves and defy the world, but want some one else to do the fighting when it comes. In Europe the opponents of world peace are confined to the Bolsheviks, the deposed monarchs and war lords.

The way to prevent war is to unite the forces that favor peace, in a league of some sort. If our statesmen can not agree on some such plan, they are a sorry bunch of boobies. To talk peace and go on building battle ships and big armies is pure hypocrisy. The claim that any league for peace will be in conflict with the constitution is campaign piffle. It amounts to less than nothing. It is not supported by any authority worthy of consideration. 28 Idle Hens Now Lay 27 Eggs A Day

And This Was in Cold Winter Weather. Plan is Simple.

"I fed Don Sung to my 28 hens that were not laying. But they are laying now. I receive as high as 27 eggs a day and never less than 22."—Mrs. Jennie Davidson, Yates Center, Kan.
Mrs. Davidson wrote this letter in February. Figure her profit on two dozen eggs a day from hens that "wouldn't lay." We'll make you the same offer we made her. Here it is:
Give your hens Don Sung and watch results for one month. If you don't find that it pays for itself and pays you a good profit besides, simply tell us and your money will be cheerfully refunded.
Don Sung (Chinese for egg-laying) is a scientific tonic and conditioner. It is easily given in the feed. Improves the hen's health and makes her stronger and more active. It tones up the egg-laying organs, and gets the eggs, no matter how cold or wet the weather.
You can obtain Don Sung from your druggist or poultry remedy dealer, or send $1.04 (includes war tax) for a package by mail. Burrill-Dugger Co., 214 Columbia Bldg., Indianapolis, Ind.

YANK MANUFACTURERS WARNED AGAINST USING

CABLES IN CODE OF THE

A. B. C. FIFTH EDITION

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Announcement is made by the American Chamber of Commerce in London that it has been asked officially to inform American manufacturers that it is practically impossible to decode cable messages sent to the country by what is known as the "A. B. C. Fifth Edition Improved Code."

This code, states the American Chamber, has no legal existence in England, and there is apparently, not a copy in the country which can be consulted if required.

It appears that this "fifth edition" as published and used in America cannot be sold in Great Britain because it would be an infringement of copyright on the A. B. C. Fifth Edition which was published in this country in 1901, but which was not copyrighted in America.

It seems that many British firms have lately received messages in this code which they were unable to decode. In practically every case the British firm has had to suffer the delay and expense of cabling back to America.

A fifth edition of this work has been published and as it is copyrighted all over the world—including the United States—it is hoped that this will simplify matters.

TENTING TONIGHT

Oh, I cannot pay the tent that protrudes around me, so I'm living in a tent on some waste and vacant land in the winter-time the snow will be packed around me deep, and the bitter blasts will blow through my whiskers while I sleep. And the tent is old and brown, and it has against its poles, and the rain comes slopping down through a roof that's full of holes. To extremities I'm brought in this golden age, by George! 'Twas for this my fathers fought through the snow at Valley Forge. And at Gettysburg my dad gave a leg and collarbone, little thinking that his lad would be tenting here alone; tenting in a canvas shack, far from cheerful merriment and street, water running down his back, and his sideboards full of sleep. And my uncle, when he went to oppose the hosts of Spain, had no use of this tent where I'm sitting to be slain. And the rain comes in a flood, with a flourish and a rush, and my ears are full of mud, and my shoes are full of slush. Driven by the profiteers from the cottages and flats, here I sit and wax my ears, and my dome is full of bats. Here I sit and eat my prunes—there are thousands fixed like me—in this land of precious boons, in this country of the free!

PROMINENT WESTERN MAN PRAISES TANLAC

G. W. Logan, Peabody, Kansas

"Tanlac has completely restored my health and I feel finer than in years," was the straightforward statement made recently by Mr. George W. Logan, of Peabody, Kansas, one of the most prominent stock dealers in the Middle West.

"It has not only made a new man of me but I have actually gained thirty-five pounds in weight and feel as well as I ever did in my life. I am telling all of my friends about Tanlac but they can see for themselves what it has done in my case."

"When I began taking Tanlac I was in an awful run-down condition. I was away off in weight, felt weak and nervous all of the time and couldn't take any interest in my work or anything else. My main trouble was in digestion. Nothing seemed to agree with me. At times I would have dizzy spells and at other times my back would ache so bad that I could hardly get up and down in my chair. This is just the condition I was in when I started to take this medicine. It took just six bottles to make a well man of me. I now have a fine appetite, everything tastes good and my digestion is perfect."

"My wife was also troubled with indigestion at times, and it relieved her the same way. You may publish my statement wherever you like and if anyone doubts it, just tell them to see me."

Tanlac is sold in Coshocton by Siegrist & Williams and in Warsaw by J. D. Lawson.

YOUR RHEUMATISM

Remove Its Cause by Purifying Your Blood.

One of the most important duties of your system is to burn up certain substances no longer of use in your body. One is uric acid, now generally held to be the cause of rheumatism. It inflames the joints, stiffens the muscles, causes pains, aches, and lameness.

The system is helped to dispose of this troublesome substance, and rheumatism is permanently relieved, by Hood's Sarsaparilla, the one true blood purifier. It is aided in many cases by Hood's Pills, which in small doses are a gentle laxative, in larger doses an active cathartic. A grand course of treatment, economical and effective.

HAS ARTIST HELD TO ONE IDEA OF U. S. BEAUTIES OVER A SPAN OF EIGHT YEARS?

Mrs. John Barrymore, whom Artist Paul Helleu called the "most beautiful woman in America eight years ago," at left, and Miss Ruby de Remer, his new choice. Below is Helleu.

Eight years ago Paul Helleu, who had then won fame with his portrayal of beautiful women, came to the U. S. from France, and, after studying American types of beauty, declared that Mrs. Leonard M. Thomas, now Mrs. John Barrymore, was "the most beautiful woman in America." And now Mr. Helleu, in America, has chosen Miss Ruby de Remer as his present ideal of American beauty. Art critics, after a study of the picture of both women above, declare there are many points in common in the classic features and expression of Mrs. Barrymore and Miss de Remer. Certainly no one disputes French artist's opinion that they are both beautiful.

TAKE PEPTO-MANGAN

Fortify Your System—Good Blood Will Give You New Strength to Keep Well

If you feel the least bit run down, not necessarily sick, but tired and blue and sort of down and out, it shows plainly that your power of resistance is low.

It is dangerous to go around that way. You don't want to do it. Make no mistake about it, when you feel yourself slipping into lazy habits, getting indifferent to the things you naturally like—no energy, no vigor, always tired—it is time to look out. It may not mean that you are sick or that you will be. But there are diseases that would have an easy time of it with your system when your blood has no fighting qualities.

You want to be well and keep well and feel strong. If you build up the quality of your blood by taking Pepto-Mangan you will be in trim to fight off winter ills. It has just the right ingredients to build your blood up with rich, red corpuscles.

Pepto-Mangan gives your blood the qualities it needs to pick-you up and start you off on a healthy basis. You will notice the difference soon after you start taking it. You will have better color, better feeling, and more energy.

You can take it in liquid or tablet form as you prefer. Both have the same ingredients. But be sure you get the genuine Gude's Pepto-Mangan. Ask for it by that name—"Gude's Pepto-Mangan." And be sure the full name is on the package.—Advertisement.

Wright, Helen Fulkerson, Ethel Stover, Helena Fortune, and Doris F. Finnell Mrs. Floy Merrell, of Toronto, and Mrs. Charles Neptune were the only guests.

Remarkable Diary.

Pope's diary is a unique work by Samuel Pope (1632-1703), giving a curious and faithful account of the times in England from 1679 to 1693. It includes almost every phase of public and social life, from the gayeties of the court to the pettiest detail of week-day existence. The book is written in shorthand, and was not discovered until a century after the author's death. It was deciphered and published (although in a mutilated form) by Lord Brougham in 1825.

Bells Worn by Priests.
Innumerable and interesting are the traditions surrounding bells. Bells, or substitutes thereof, have ever played an important part in religious ceremonies. In the books of Exodus and Ecclesiastes the ornaments of the high priest's ephod include bells, so that "their sound might be heard whenever he goeth in or cometh out of the sanctuary." Their use in the eastern church obtains even to this day, bells being found as they were or old on the fringe of priestly garments.

GAINED 25 POUNDS SINCE TAKING FIVE BOTTLES DREGO

Ten weeks ago was weak, thin, pale, nervous, stomach out of order and body full of rheumatic pains. Claims this great root and herb medicine, produced marvelous change.

"This is my sixth bottle of Drego and I want to say it's wonderful what this medicine has done for me," said Mr. K. E. Clingen who lives at the corner of Downey and Grant Streets, Piqua, Ohio, and is well known and highly esteemed.

"Ten weeks ago I had rheumatism in every joint and muscle in my body. I was full of pain. My stomach was badly deranged so that my food did me no good, seemed it wasn't strong enough to extract the value out of what I ate and furnish the nourishment of my system. I had lost a lot of weight, was nervous pale and weak. My sleep was broken and I didn't care to eat at all.

"But look at me today since taking Drego. I have gained 25 pounds in actual weight, have a big appetite, and my stomach digests everything I eat. My nerves are steady so that I sleep sound and every rheumatic pain is gone. Drego is a wonderful medicine and certainly has my strong endorsement."

Drego acts on the vital organs and aids them to perform their duty as nature intends, that is why Drego results seem so marvelous, and also why the results are permanent.

All druggists now sell Drego and it is being especially introduced in Coshocton by Page & Lorenz drug store.

LADIES! DARKEN

YOUR GRAY HAIR

Use Grandma's Sage Tea and Sulphur Recipe and Nobody will know.

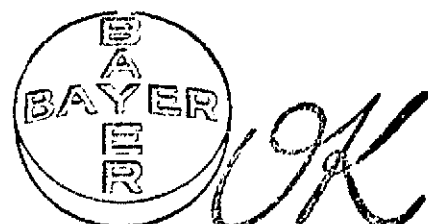

The use of Sage and Sulphur for restoring faded, gray hair to its natural color dates back to grandmother's time. She used it to keep her hair beautifully dark, glossy and attractive. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect.

But brewing at home is messy and out of date. Nowadays, by asking at any drug store for a bottle of "Wyle's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get this famous old preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients, which can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says it darkens the hair so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this thru your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, it becomes beautifully dark and glossy.

Quite a Heroine

By ALVAH J. GARTH

A young girl, modestly attired, graceful and lovely, came down to the boat landing at Bolivar and bestowed nods and smiles upon the captain and helmsman about the little craft moored there.

Erwin Trask did not take his eyes away from her from the moment she had come in view of the top of an incline leading down to the water's edge. She carried two large pasteboard boxes which she set carefully upon a stool.

"Just in time, Captain Taff," she remarked to the rotund, bustling owner of the launch. "Will you stop for me at Ashton?"

"We'd stop for you in the middle of the ocean if you asked us to, honey girl," responded the captain with genuine ardor. Eh, Barton?

"Every time," piped the man at the wheel enthusiastically, and then captain and wheelman chatted with her about the health of her father, things up at the little farm and a variety of subjects, evincing an intimate knowledge of her affairs and an interest in the same.

The girl looked sweet enough to deserve the name bestowed upon her—"honey girl"—but Trask soon discovered that this was not, as he had at first supposed, a familiar endearing epithet. She was called "honey girl" because her father operated a small farm specializing in honey and bees. He reared and dealt in a rare and desirable breed of Italian bees and shipped as well as delivered them all over the country. The two boxes the girl had brought aboard probably held some of these, which she was taking to a customer at a distance.

Two grim faced, unprepossessing looking men taken aboard up the river sat by themselves at the stern of the boat. No particular attention was paid to them. They had paid their fare for the through trip. They got up and moved about the deck with some animation, however, as the boat traversed a part of the river that broadened out, with little islands here and there. The captain had gone up close to the wheelman when the craft entered this stretch, as if the tortuous course demanded careful attention.

Trask had never seen the girl before and the captain had mentioned to him as he went about his duties.

"Mr. Trask of the Byron bank, Miss Warren," he said. "We have two treasures aboard this trip—the bank's big iron box and your honey girl."

Very soon the twin, young companions, were conversing pleasantly to pass the time. Trask was interested in the unique calling of the young lady and her father, and Ada Warren learned that once a week he made the trip with a large amount of ready cash for a city correspondent bank. Her eyes opened wide as he observed that there was over fifty thousand dollars in the heavy clamped box in the cabin.

The two strangers had approached the wheel. One of them carried with him a common tool bag, the other suddenly revealed two revolvers.

"Run the boat against that island over yonder, shut off the power and get to the stern with your passengers or we will do some shooting," gruffly ordered the man with the bag. "Keep them lined up, partner," and within the ensuing next few minutes the startled Ada and the young bank man knew that they were in the midst of a hold-up. The wheelman and Captain were compelled to crowd back between some benches, held at bay by a leveled weapon. Ada sat pale and inert on the stool, warned by the ruffian to make no move or he would show no discrimination in her favor because she was a woman.

Then his confederate entered the cabin. They could hear the clinking of tools and heavy blows as he began his assault upon the treasure box. Ada glanced pityingly at Trask. The loss to the bank would be great, but no one dared move from under the domination of the armed ruffian, for it was apparent that he was a desperate character.

Gradually Ada's color returned. Her eyes glowed with resolution. She was not gunned as closely as Trask and the wheelman. She suddenly caught up both of the pasteboard boxes, knocked in their top against the outside of the cabin, sent one box and then the other through a window, crashing it glass, frame and all, and arose to her feet defiantly facing the armed guard. He directed a weapon at her menacingly. Then in profound amazement his hands dropped to his side.

For from the cabin there burst forth the most frightful cries of rage and distress. The next moment, beating his head and body with his hands and covered with bees, the occupant of the cabin dashed out upon deck and in a frenzy of his stinging torture sprang overboard to relieve himself of his tormentors.

That was the critical moment for Ada. She seized a wooden bar and delivered one crushing blow at the armed man who, taken off his guard, went down like a shot.

The captain, Trask and the wheelman soon placed both marauders in bonds and the bank treasure was saved, and when Trask later called at the Warren home with a substantial money token of appreciation of Ada's heroism, that was the beginning of a romance that soon ended in wedded bliss.

Tourneur's County Fair Sensation of the Screen

With the great demand for rural studies upon the screen, Maurice Tourneur has breathed up with the call in fine shape with his picture version of "The County Fair."

It is one of those heart interest stories of laughter and tears and plain simple people that never fails to register. For years Neil Burgess toured the country in the original drama and the play and star became a household affair. Tourneur has elaborated upon the story and made it a sure-fire hit upon the screen. Its fame has spread like wildfire and everywhere the people are clamoring to see it.

In addition to the excitement the humor and the charm of the appealing tale, there is a cast which includes several players now being starred in their own productions, such as Wesley Barry, the famous freckle-faced boy of the screen; David Butler, the rugged young star of modern hits, and dainty Helen Jerome Eddy in one of her inimitable girl types. Others of prominence are Edith Chapman, William V. Mong, John Stepping and Charles Barton.

There is a great horse race as the climax of the delightful pictures of a county fair in full swing as the high lights in this best of the Tourneur productions, which comes to the 8th St. Theatre Friday and Saturday, December 10 and 11th.

Ever Catch a Micropteris?

The black bass are of two species—the small-mouth black bass and the large-mouth black bass. writes Dr. R. W. Shufeldt in the American Forestry Magazine. Both belong to the genus Micropteris, and are readily distinguished through the fact that in the last-named form the angle of the gape of the mouth is back of the imaginary vertical line from the center of the pupil of the eye upon either side. So gamy are these fish that they are known as the "gamefish of the North," and anglers prefer to fish for them above all other kinds.

Youthful Joys.

If dryads ever chose special dwellings it must have been within the hollow of walnut trees. If the tree was unknown to old Helios, then the gods forgot something essential to the happiness of youth. If the ancestors of Pericles and all the heroes of the golden age did not betimes go adventuring for walnuts, acquiring burns and stone-bruises, then they never knew the joy that comes to the Middle Western lads, who each fading year bear home their treasures to spread on the old kitchen roof to dry.—Exchange.

Church Bells.

The Angelus bell, always rung thrice a day, takes its name from the first words of the prayer. In Tuscany a bell is rung an hour before the evening Angelus, or Ave bell, and is intended to remind its hearers to say the creed. The De Profundis bell sounds one hour after the Ave. In Italy on Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock thirty-three strokes are sounded in many churches and convents in memory of Christ's death at the age of 33. The custom probably is followed elsewhere.

The First Sauce.

Who made the first sauce? Were the Chinese the pioneers in this as in so many other things? At one of the many Celestial restaurants now springing up in London I was given a card with my dinner, in which the brown and mysterious but not unappetizing condiment—served in small saucers—was described as "the oldest sauce in the world." Is it in truth the ancestor of Worcester, Yorkshire and all those other liquid inseparables of the beef-steaks and chops of old England?—Correspondence of London Chronicle.

Beit That Worked Miracles.

Many tales of the supernatural are told concerning evil spirits and the efficacy of bells in warding them off; likewise regarding the power of consecrated bells for bringing blessings. In an old chapel at Killin in Perthshire, Scotland, was a bell called that of St. Fillan, which had the reputation of curing lunacy. After the sufferer had spent a night in the chapel he was in the morning placed with great solemnity under the bell, and in many cases recorded in the old chronicles the faith was rewarded.

True Merit

By CECILLE LANGDON

There was nothing that Ellis Bortell would not do for the half score of young ladies who comprised a group to whom Roslyn Faber had introduced him. Ellis was an instantaneous success with the girls. No one understood that he possessed a fortune or was as yet fully settled in a business way, but his father had some means and at this first little journey of his son out into the social world had apparently provided for his enjoyment of the same liberally.

"It is almost a sin to encourage him," said Elsa Woods. "You know and myself and the rest of our group that he is simply a stray wanderer into our circle whom we must forget before the season is over."

"Why should that be?" challenged Myra Warden. "If he is good enough to invite to our homes and introduce to our friends, why is he not eligible for full recognition at any time?"

"Don't be heroic, Myra, as you alone of all of us with your wealth and prestige can afford to be if you so elect. Do you think Mr. Bortell would pass muster at the grand reception and other high social functions down at Wadham's beach?"

"Mr. Bortell simply lacks knowing the ways of the artificial life we lead," insisted Myra. "He is a trifle rude I will admit, but a thorough gentleman in every sense of the word. The girls find him inclined to spend money freely and he is really a royal entertainer, but it is right to encourage him in splendid ways? The last one of you, to be plain, will drop him the minute his bank roll gives out, as the saying is."

"You talk as though we were a set of girl pirates!" indignantly retorted Elsa.

"Well, don't lead the poor, artless fellow to believe that any of you are in love with him. He is a good deal of a man, despite his rare delight at being noticed and taken up by you pretty girls."

"And you?" Insinuated Elsa, but Myra shrugged her shoulders carelessly, a slight flush on her delicate features, however.

Somewhat Ellis had been more reticent with Myra than with the others, probably due to her prestige of wealth and position.

Elsa Woods laughed to herself when Ellis Bortell announced that he intended to round out a month of the most substantial pleasure of his life by taking a week at Wadham's beach. It was there that the girls paired off with more chosen friends and lovers, and Ellis found himself somewhat neglected, but he was always willing and loyal to contribute in a free way to what was going on, and the wise and worldly ones allowed him to join their circle, merely as a hanger on, as Elsa cruelly expressed it.

Miss Warden was neither engaged nor very partial to the opposite sex and she and Ellis often met, and the sterling worth of this as yet unformed member of society was daily more and more recognized by her. There were elements of candor and good impulse in the young man that attracted her. She refused to allow him to spend his money in automobile rides and expensive dinners, however, and warned off the exactions of her self-seeking girl friends whenever possible.

There was a picnic to an outlying island one day and Ellis was particularly happy to be chosen as the special escort of Miss Warden. They remained until after dusk, notwithstanding the fact that a storm had hovered on the horizon for some hours.

"We had better start for home," Ellis, who was considerable of a weather prognosticator, had told the others several times, but his suggestion was not followed, until after the wind had arisen and it had begun to rain. They neared the mainland with the frail yacht a mere plaything at the caprice of the tempest. Ellis was the only one among the young men who seemed capable of managing the craft.

"The boat is past control!" he shouted finally. "The rudder has broken and we must take to the surf."

Ellis seized Myra and sprang overboard as the craft capsized.

It was with difficulty that he brought her ashore. Faint, weak, exhausted as she was, he placed Myra beyond the reach of the waves, tore off his coat and dashed back into the roaring surf.

Precious lives were at hazard and the frightened escorts of the girls lost both courage and manhood it would seem, for Ellis had the rescue of the shrieking half-drowned girls all to himself. When the last one of them had been brought safely ashore there was not one of them who did not have the brave, bold Ellis to thank that they were alive.

It was after that when Miss Warden took up more than ever with the company of Ellis Bortell. She thanked him only once for his many efforts in her behalf, but a new sense of protection had come to her regarding him. When his week was up Ellis returned home. He had given the girls a good time he told his father, and one girl in particular.

He could not forget that especial one, nor could she cease to think of the real worth and manliness that had saved her in the hour of danger. He ventured to ask her to an automobile ride later on, and amid flowers and bird song and sunshine Ellis Bortell won the bride he so deserved.

There was a good demand for Baldwin which advanced 3/4 to 97 1/2.

Southern Pacific was again in supply, yielding 1/2 to 104 1/2. The rights were traded in from 23 1/2 to 23 3/4, and Pacific oil sold from 37 1/2 to 38.

Steel common was quiet and unchanged.

FIRE BUGS BUSY IN PA. COUNTIES

FAYETTE CITY, Pa., Dec. 6.—A reign of terror today exists in many districts in Fayette, West Moreland and Washington counties comprising an area of 150 square miles. Fire bugs are running amuck and many school houses, barns, houses, stores and other buildings have been mysteriously burned within the last thirty days, entailing losses amounting into large figures.

Patrols of former service men are on duty at night in this town, watchmen are guarding twelve school houses in Rostraver township, West Moreland-co between sunset and dawn while several deputy state fire marshals are devoting their entire time to prevent further destruction of property from incendiary blazes and to apprehend the fire bugs who do their work at night.

Scores of volunteers are aiding the officers of the law. One school building after another has been burned. The loss on the structure was $80,000. The motive for the many fires has not been disclosed.

At most of the fires have been found remnants of cotton waste saturated with oil. Waste from the boxes of freight cars have been used.

PROCEEDS OF SEAL SALE THIS YEAR IS FOR MANY PURPOSES

The money received this year from the sale of Red Cross seals will be given a wider range of usefulness than at any time before. Although the money will all be used for the fight against tuberculosis it will be used to attack the germs from different angles than heretofore.

The public schools will be benefited by this fund as a part of it is to be used in buying text books on hygiene for the instruction of the pupils, especially relating to tuberculosis. If there is more than a sufficient amount of money to take care of more pressing needs, part of the money will be used to provide medical inspection free to the pupils of the public school.

The quota for Coshocton-co is ten seals to each person. Last year one-third this number were sold in Coshocton-co or an average of three and one-half seals to each person. Franklin-co sold an average of 26 seals to each person last year. Fifteen counties and cities in Ohio exceeded their quota last year, while Coshocton-co failed to make over one-third of its quota.

Under the new ruling the money received from the sale of these seals may also be used to prevent tuberculosis in homes where there are children living with those who already have the disease, and the parents are not in a position to take preventive measures. The money may also be used for open air schools, maintenance of dispensaries and the construction of hospitals or sanatoriums for the care of tuberculosis.

The Rotary club of Columbus, which had charge of the seals in 1919 is at the present time building a $25,000 sanatorium and will equip it for the care of tuberculosis patients from the $60,000 which they received from the sale of the seals last year, according to a local club woman.

In Coshocton-co during the year 1918 there were 29 deaths due to tuberculosis and in 1919 28 deaths due to the same cause, while in the city of Coshocton there were 17 deaths from tuberculosis in 1918 and 10 deaths in 1919. This shows some improvement in the county seat but little improvement throughout the whole county.

Quickly-Matured Pigs Make Profitable Gain

That it is usually advisable to feed fall pigs heavily and fatten them as quickly as possible rather than feed a light ration through the winter is brought out in tests at the Ohio Experiment Station.

Farmers sometimes carry their pigs through the winter on as little grain as possible and then in spring turn them on pasture with the intention of compelling them to make their gains largely from forage.

According to the experiment, the profit from light winter feeding, with forage and grain during the spring months, is not large enough to justify the expense of keeping the corn and feeding hogs over the long period.

Considerable more labor is required, and the over head charges increase for the long period so that more profit must be secured to pay for these extra expenses.

With the cost of corn figured at $11.2 a bushel, tankage at $100 a ton and pasture at $12 an acre, the returns per bushel of corn were only 6 cents greater with light feeding followed by forage than that shown by full-fed pigs.

CHILDREN AND HOME BURNED, WIFE SHOT DURING ABSENCE OF TRUMBULL-CO MAN

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Dec. 6. Developments that light today throw a new aspect about the tragedy at Kansas Corners, one mile east of Hubbard, Trumbull-co, last night, when Mrs. Alta Koehler, 27, was shot three times, and her two sons William, three and Warren, five, were burned to death. Mrs. Koehler is in a local hospital in a serious condition, tho at times entertain hopes for her recovery.

First linking of the tragedy came when the woman, covered with blood staggered into the home of Harry Haggerty, a neighbor, Sunday evening about 7:30 o'clock. In a choking voice she told the family that she had been attacked by an unidentified negro who ransacked the house, killed the children, shot her, then set the dwelling on fire.

Sherry Collier, a young man who lives near the Koehlers, and who has been a frequent caller at the Koehler home, gives a different version of the affair. He claims that immediately after flames appeared in the Koehler residence Mrs. Koehler told him she had fired the house after killing the two children and wounding herself. Collier, aged 19, is the son of Andrew Collier, another resident of Kansas Corners and related his story to Marshal Carl Ferguson, of Hubbard. He is held in the village jail, pending further developments. Young Collier's parents objected so strenuously to the attention which he paid to Mrs. Koehler that he left home some time ago, living with a relative at Greenville, Pa., and returned only a week ago.

He is said to have resumed his visits to the Koehler home. Another theory upon which authorities are working is that young Collier had some secret connection with the crime. The bodies of the two boys were discovered in the debris by the flames after the second story of the house had fallen in. They fell with the bed on which they slept and the bodies were on top of the springs. Marshal Ferguson does not believe they were shot before being suffocated and burned, tho the bodies were so badly burned that all traces of wounds would have been obliterated.

Discovery of a large calibre revolver in the Koehler home, with four empty chambers, is regarded as a possible means of clearing up the tragedy.

The weapon had evidently been recently discharged. The bullets fired into Mrs. Koehler's body were of large calibre.

Neighbors who went to the burning home after Mrs. Koehler appeared in the doorway of the Haggerty residence say that the flames prevented them from ascending the stairs in their search for the two boys as the second story was engulfed in fire.

At the time of the tragedy, Thomas A. Koehler, father of the boys was at work in Youngstown.

The Koehlers formerly lived in Youngstown, but moved to Kansas Corners last spring. They came to Youngstown three years ago from New York city. Both in Youngstown and in Hubbard the family enjoyed an excellent reputation.

Meat Scrap Ration Safe For Egg-Hatching Feed

Tests conducted at the Ohio Experiment Station show that the amount of meat scrap fed in rations to laying hens does not materially influence the hatchability of eggs.

In separate tests, which contained approximately two, 13 and 24 per cent of meat scrap, the hatchability of eggs averaged almost 70 per cent.

Even in the rations which contain much more meat scrap than was necessary to produce the maximum number of eggs, the hatchability was higher on the average than from hens receiving maximum amount of meat scrap.

Some poultrymen have held that the eggs from hens fed heavily on meat scrap would be inferior for hatching.

ABUTTING PROPERTY OWNERS TO OPPOSE ROAD'S COMPLETION

Will Fight Construction of Brick Highway On Newcomerstown-Rd, Let By Commissioners With the Time Limit Expiring November 1, 1920

Over $22,600 of a proportionate tax of $30,000 is represented by 45 land owners along Section E of the inter-county highway No. 407 between West Lafayette and Newcomerstown in a protest against the proposed improvement of this section of the highway, filed with the county commissioners at their special meeting December 2.

The complaint was filed on the grounds that the contract which was let to Norman Bros. in June for approximately $122,000 for a brick pavement about two and one half miles long, was to have been completed on or before November 1, 1920, and that on that day the contract had not been completed and that it had barely been started, and that the assessment of 25 per cent was more than was contemplated by the statute except under extreme circumstances and that there were no extreme circumstances present in this case. Next that a gravel road just as useful and practical could be built for a much smaller amount of money, and that the price of building a brick road was, at the time that the contract was let, at its maximum price and that both labor and material have decreased in price so that the road could be built for less money now.

The commissioners, at the time of its filing, refused to consider the objection, and refused to change the assessment, except in certain specific instances, where the apportionment was changed and not the entire body of the tax.

Ohio Sportsmen Are Strong For Baxter Want A Duck Limit

Opposition to a movement to induce the federal government to open up spring duck shooting was registered by the League of Ohio Sportsmen, which held its annual convention at Columbus, Friday. Several Coshocton men attended.

Delegates endorsed the migratory bird treaty act and urged its enforcement, but recommended that the bag limit on wild ducks be reduced from 25 birds a day to a limit of 12 or 15. They reported that under federal regulations wild ducks and geese are showing a marvelous increase. The sportsmen also spoke favorably of a federal hunting license, to be used in support of the treaty act and in establishing game refuges.

L. J. Taber, master of the State Grange, and J. H. Larimore, representing the Ohio Farm Bureau Federation, offered a helping hand to the sportsmen in the discussion of constructive fish and game legislation and measures to bring about better hunting and fishing game refuges.
